No.: 05/R/475/2026

Date: 21.05.2026

NOTIFICATION

In light of the implementation of NEP in all the courses, the time period prescribed for a semester is reckoned from the first day of the semester to the date of commencement of examinations. Accordingly, the number of teaching days in each semester varies within a limited period of time.

In order to bring about a change in the method of instruction, while taking into account the limited number of teaching days, faculty members must share notes, textbooks, reference books, online study material related to the syllabus, and video lectures (wherever required) with the entire class. This will facilitate the students to study in advance and come prepared with relevant queries and ingenious ideas for classroom discussions. A Faculty member, being a facilitator, must assist students in resolving their doubts and encourage their innovative ideas. In this manner, a balance may be struck between maintaining teaching standards and ensuring the timely completion of the syllabus.

The faculty member concerned may involve any of his/her research scholars in preparing an email group for the students of the concerned class and in circulating the aforesaid study materials among all the students via email.

Faculty members should avoid taking classes on power point presentations (PPT). Presentations should be used only when the teacher intends to display relevant videos, diagrams, figures, or other illustrative material.

This kind of pedagogy conforms to global standards and, in order to remain at par with global academic norms, it is necessary that we adopt such practices.

Further, the entire syllabus of each semester must be completed within the stipulated time, and each faculty member shall submit in writing to the respective Heads of Departments/Coordinators confirming completion of the syllabus assigned to him/her.

Taking assigned classes on time is a mandatory duty of a faculty member alongside evaluation of answer script, duties in examination and any other duty assigned by the University failing which appropriate action can be taken.

This is issued with the approval of the Competent Authority.
